Britain Welcomes Marshall Aid Shipments

MARSHALL AID sugar from the Caribbeans arrives in Britain. Pictured here with the ECA's Food and Agriculture Director, E. M. Holmgreen (extreme right), is the British Minister of Food, John Strachey, who visited London docks for the unloading of 4,700 tons of raw San Domingo sugar purchased with the help of Marshall Plan dollars. Without U.S. aid through the European Co-operation Administration, Britain's weekly sugar ration of 8 ounces per person would be further reduced.

Serious Drinking Water Condition

LAC LA BICHE. — The village encountered a very serious drinking water condition recently. Nearly all drinking water is hauled from the local lake by tank and the weed and scum condition this fall presented a green blackish water that was little less than revolting for washing, much less drinking.

Village authorities got in touch with Mr. McArthur, general manager of the N.A.R., requesting permission to purchase drinking water from the railway water tank here

This water is pumped a great distance from the lake shore and is chlorinated before entry into the tank. The water from the tank is entirely clear.

The railway authorities agreed to relieve the condition at a very minimum fee, and the village has good drinking water once more.

The railway setpping into the breach remedied a very serious condition, and should be greatly appreciated.

Many pieces of handwork have been submitted and it is hoped that the rest will be in by the next meeting.

Following the business session the hostess served a most delicious lunch.

ANGLING IN BEAVER LAKE

LAC LA BICHE.—During the past three or four years quite a few local town people have been going out on Thursday afternoons and on week-ends to fish with hook and line at Beaver Lake. There are also some that go there with their families to swim and bath. Therefore it is not understood why some people have no more sense than to break bottles and leave the broken glass on the beach and in the water where the little tots must bath.

With the population of Lac la Biche increasing every year, more people will be going to Beaver Lake to fish and have a holiday. It may not be very long before the Fisheries Branch will close this lake for four-inch mesh fish and leave pickeral, perch and pike for the anglers, allowing the commercial fishermen to fish for whitefish only. Therefore it is hoped that the "hoodlums" that are breaking glass and throwing tin cans into the lake will realize how dangerous these things can be, and may spoil a good holiday for some of the local town folks.

Wedding

LAC LA BICHE.—The beautiful wedding between Miss Oreal Plamondon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Plamondon of Lac la Biche, and Mr. Wilfred Plamondon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Plamondon, also of Lac la Biche, took place on August 22 in the Lac la Biche Catholic Church.

The bride was lovely dressed in a floor-length gown and floor length veil. She carried roses.

Her bridesmaids wore also floor length gowns with chapel veils. They too, carried roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Aruilla Plamondon, Miss Alvena St. Jean, Miss Marie Cote, Misses Myrtle and Louise Gauthier.

Best men were Mr. Frank Plamondon, Mr. Roland Gauthier, Mr. Hiliare Plamondon, Mr. Lawrence St. Jean and Mr. Donat Cote.

A wonderful dinner was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Plamondon to about 35 guests and about 125 people attended the supper given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Plamondon.

Father McGrane attended both meals.

An enjoyable dance was held in the Memorial hall.

BLUE JAY NEWS

BLUE JAY.—I wish to apologize to the readers of this section for not keeping them informed of the happenings around here. Must say that with the arrival of the summer months I could not bring myself to contribute even a little amount of "new news" or "old news," as the case might be, to our worthy paper the Lac la Biche Herald. The beauties of nature, flowers in bloom, trees with their thick foliage of leaves, the wonderful scents of growing plant life etc., completely got away with me.

But I guess this is enough of beating around the bush, and I might as well admit that it was really laziness on my part that prevented me from sending in news items. So as a first step in turning over a new leaf, I'll try to bring you up-to-date on the happenings around this district.

Mr. Alex Blonsky, Mr. Mike Greygeo and Mr. Sanley Ilnicki have purchased Model 44 Massey-Harris tractors.

Mr. Stanley Kozmierzok has purchased a new Ford truck, while Mr. George Dowholuk has purchased a new Mercury truck.

Mr. John Yakimuk purchased a Case tractor.

Mr. Paul Karpetz has purchased a McCormick-Deering tractor.

Miss Ann Zuk is supervising the Blue Jay school pupils.

Mr. Mike Gerrella of British Columbia is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Moroz.

Threshing operations which were just beginning are being held up because of recent rains.

PLEA TO ECONOMISTS: MAKE UP YOUR MINDS!

Sometimes we wish the economists would make up their minds.

Long before Malthus put it in theory form, the world had been operating on "a scarcity economy." Then along came Henry George, Major Douglas and the Technocrats to challenge Malthusian doctrine and establish the "economics of plenty," which has pretty well been the generally-accepted economic viewpoint of the past decade.

Now, led by Sir John Boyd Orr, late Director-General of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, a whole new school has arisen to proclaim the peril of over-production of babies and under-production of food. We are right back to the economics of scarcity (not considering the babies).

Sir Hartley Shawcross, British Attorney-General, has declared: "The world is steadily moving towards catastrophe." He bases this grim prediction on the fact that since 1938 world population has risen 150 millions whereas food production has declined seven per cent.

This is in high contrast to a statement of the late Stephen Leacock, who was known as a conservative economist: "Given sufficient raw materials, with our existing boot machinery we could bury this world under a pile of shoes 18 miles deep."

Aldous Huxley takes the other side: "In the most favorable circumstances we can reasonably imagine, world population is bound to rise at least 3,000 millions before it starts to decline. This means, whatever happens, the next half-century will be a time of the gravest political and economic danger."

Japan long ago faced the problem of population in relation to living standards. "If we are to maintain even present living standards", said Aota, former foreign minister, "we have a surplus population of one million a year. Birth control education won't work—we've tried it—and besides it is against our religion. All countries' immigration gates are shut. The only thing we can do is tell the million to find a livelihood elsewhere, and the most accessible is the mainland."

This was Japan's justification for war. Others have justified war on grounds that it was nature's way of keeping a balance between foods and population. But while the death rate is high in war so is the birth rate. Germany came out of the last war with a higher population than when she entered.

A different type of problem is that the birth rate is always highest among the lowest classes; but it is population in relation to food which mainly concerns the economists these days.

Sir John Boyd Orr put his finger on the real problem when he said: "The gravity of the situation is increased by the wasting fertility due to erosion of the lands we have already exploited. It takes nature about 500 years to build up one inch of fertile soil.

"Man, by his wanton misuses, can destroy eight inches in two or three generations."

Yet all this dire foreboding seems to us to be just that. Each generation has been predicting catastrophe for the next but still managing somehow to meet its own problems while lifting world betterment perceptibly.

Science can produce almost anything synthetically these days. After all, energy—the basis of all substance—cannot be created nor destroyed; we still have the same amount of source material we started with; it is only a question of changing it into proper form for use.

Besides, even if human beings have productivity so have the animals and plants which sustain them.

It all reminds us of the story of the astronomer who predicted the end of the world in 60 billion years and one man asked: "How long?" "Sixty billion years." "Oh," said the man with obvious relief in his voice, "I thought you said six billion"!

Yet we do wish the economists would make up their minds whether we should expect the lean or hope for the fat. While it won't put an extra pound of butter in our refrigerator, it would probably help those who have to plan on a world scale in their thinking—and add less confusion to our own!

CANADA'S INDUSTRIAL PEACE WELCOME EVEN IF TEMPORARY

Two serious strikes in Canada this year may have made some of us believe that industrial unrest was growing.

At least one of the strikes, that of the seamen, was a struggle for union control rather than a dispute between labor and management over labor conditions or pay. The Catholic Union strike in the asbestos mining industry in Quebec is a bit too complicated for cursory comment.

The point, however, is that figures actually show a marked decline in industrial disputes since 1946. In that year, 139,474 workers were involved in strikes or lockouts, with a loss of 4,516,393 working days. In 1947, the number of workers involved declined to 104,820, accounting for 2,397,340 working days. Last year figures took a large drop, to 42,820 workers and 885,793 days lost.

At the same time individual productivity showed increases. Labor turnover, lateness and absenteeism have dropped.

Many reasons might be ascribed. During the war, labor was scarce. With the return of servicemen to industry, many workers realize they must pay more attention to their job if they want to keep it. At present, relatively there is full employment and men for the jobs. Conditions are good and the spirit generally optimistic.

During the past decade trade union members have increased 270 per cent, and trade unions themselves shown more tendency to become reasonable in their relations with management, while management on its side has shown greater willingness to listen to the demands of labor.

Workers are showing more pride in their work. Management is indicating it is beginning to appreciate the importance of the human element.

Only in one respect is employment showing alarming tendencies: the high premium placed on youth. Industrially a man is too old at 40. Watch classified ads and notice how often they specify a much lower age qualification than 40 years.

This is all the more peculiar when surveys in the United States and Canada indicate that nearly all top executives are men past 60 and that younger men are not coming along to replace them.

For some time the Dominion Labor Department has been worrying about this "too old at forty" attitude. Employment figures show that they are the first to be laid off and the most difficult to become re-employed. If a recession should come the situation could become serious, particularly as this is the class of employee with most family responsibility.

Problems of employment and industrial unrest are by no means ended. But it is always cheerful to report improvement.

Gangsters Return To Get War Profit

By JAY LLOYD

In the hey-day of gangsterdom in Chicago, a group of mobsters set several scientists to work developing a flexible body armor.

When the work was finished to their satisfaction, they even started to take out a patent. About this time the F.B.I. was cultivating an active curiosity about such goings-on and the gangsters decided it would be more profitable to confine their steel vest peddling to their friends.

Somehow or other the formula came into possession of a Lithuanian Jew named Weisbrod, who for some years made a fair living selling it to police and other interested parties. One of his customers, incidentally, was King Peter of Yugoslavia, who did not wear it the day of his assassination only because it would not fit under his uniform.

DRAMATIC METHOD

Weisbrod had rather a dramatic method of selling his wares. He would attend police conventions, and at some formal dinner, or other suitable public gathering. an accomplice would enter and fire a revolver shot at him at close range. Weisbrod would slump in his chair. but at the proper moment would revive to demonstrate that he was completely unharmed, producing the spent bullet to prove this was no blank cartridge trick.

So, more and more, police were hunting evil-doers with protection which gangster research had provided for them.

CAME THE WAR

When World War II started. G. Scot Williams was eeking out a living (more for the fun of it than because he needed the money) working a small gold mine in Nova Scotia. Having been through the first world conflict, "Bill"—as he was better known to his friends—had about decided to sit this one out until it became apparent the British were wearing out their welcome in France, as far as the Germans were concerned.

This required drastic action—it was about time Bill Williams personally took a hand. He headed for Ottawa and the R.C.A.F.

With a don't-worry-boys-I'm-here-to-take-charge-of-things attitude Bill went to the recruiting centre where a young officer who probably hadn't been born when Bill was shooting Germans out of the sky in the last spat, gave him a cold how-interesting-but-I'm-afraid - we - can't - use-you-too-old-you-know answer.

For some weeks Bill licked his wounds in the Chateau Laurier, more than ever determined that he was going to make some superhuman effort to save a tottering British Empire. France fell. Aircraft badly needed for British Commonwealth Air Training Plan were shipped back overseas.

NO SALE

Like a shot Bill was off for the United States. By the time he reached New Mexico he had options on 149 aircraft suitable (he thought) for training purposes. At this point he thought he had better enquire. Some of the kites might

CWNA Convention at Jasper Park Lodge

By T. W. PUE

Last week newspaper editors from every province of Canada, including Newfoundland attended the 1949 annual meeting of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association at Jasper Park Lodge. Amid the splendor of towering mountain peaks surrounding the beautifully arranged lodge and park grounds, the everyday problems of newspaper men were discussed.

Alberta delegates, besides Mrs. Pue and myself (who were accompanied by Dian and Betty Mae) included Bill Draayer of Wetaskiwin, the Galbraith's of Red Deer, Randy Matthews of Alliance, Bennie Knowles, Fort Saskatchewan, Gordon Smith, Stony Plain, Len D'Albertson, Wainwright, Ken Patrige, Camrose and others. I missed seeing George Holmes of Provost and Art Eastly of Sedgewick, who did not attend.

T. W. Pue

In addition to newspapermen the Premier of Alberta, Hon. E. C. Manning and Publicity Director, Mr. Bryant of Edmonton were there for a few days. Also President Vaughan of the Canadian National Railways, C. O. Nickle of Daily Oil Bulletin, Calgary, and C.N.R. Public Relations Chief, Walter Thompson.

BING MISSED US

The whole convention started off with a note of misfortune. Bing Crosby, who has built up a reputation as a golfer (and also idles away some time in radio and movies) left the Lodge with his party just a few hours before we arrived. For our first few meals at the Lodge we, however, occupied table No. 24, where der Bingle dined. Poor Crosby may never have another chance of meeting me, however, and it must be small consolation to him (should he know) that we sat at his dinner table.

WINED AND DINED

This heading isn't quite appropriate for a writer who does not indulge in alcoholic beverages, but what with fabulous multi-coursed dinners and before-lunch cocktail parties we were entertained by the Province of Alberta, Massey-Harris Farm Implements, Imperial Oil Ltd., Burns & Co., Ltd. (open air barbecue); printing machinery companies and others.

Aside from the over-indulgence in food I enjoyed greatly meeting fellow publishers from all parts of Canada. Next year the convention will be at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea in New Brunswick and I hope I shall be able to attend. Canada is a big country and this annual get-together of press representatives of all parts of it makes for better understanding of all its peoples.

SOME THAT WERE NOT THERE

In past years several former Alberta publishers, well-known to readers of our Community Publications, were conspicuous by their absence.

I think particularly of H. W. Betts, founder of the group of weekly newspapers which formed the first of the Community Publications. There is J. D. Skinner, former publisher of the Lac Ste. Anne Chronicle.

John Salton, former publisher of the Castor paper, who is now on the staff of Community Publications in Edmonton and is taking two weeks' vacation.

CHICAGO. — Saving up $1,000 for a down payment on a house, Larry Borko, and his wife, Anna, learned that the VA would not make a loan on the house unless it was painted. Borko, a handless veteran, could not afford to have the painting done or do it himself, having lost his hands as a Seabe on Okinawa when a Japanese mine exploded in front of him.

Hearing of his plight, however, Legionnaires, who were painters, 22 strong, bearing brushes and buckets of paint, swarmed over the house and put on one coat. They promised to return a week later to put on the second and do the trimming.

Gangsters Return to Get War Profits

Bill dragged himself back to Ottawa, partly in hope of getting something back from what he had paid out in options and partly because he was not yet convinced there was no place for him in this scrap.

One evening a hotel acquaintance told him that a local jeweller had an agency for a flexible body armor. More to make conversation than anything else. Bill said he would like to see it. The next evening the jeweller appeared, shot a .32 bullet at the armor, squashing the pellet as flat as a stepped-on strawberry. and then bent the armor with his hands to show how it would flex with body movement.

A GOOD IDEA

"If I'd had something like that in the last war, I would have tackled a whole squadron of Huns by myself," declared Bill after he had satisfied himself the whole performance was above-board. Then he thought for a moment: "Say. that's a good idea!"

Bill did not let his "good idea" remain there. He became a one-man missionary for arming pilots and crew of combat aircraft.

He made a contract with Weisbrod for world rights outside the United States and went to work on government departments. He got nowhere.

As far as aircraft were concerned, armament officers had already decided—and probably rightly, as it proved — to armor the machine rather than the man.

But Bill certainly had his talking points: machines were expendable but not the trained men; shoot a man through a leg or an arm and he had a painful wound but he could still carry on, but shoot him through the body and it probably would be fatal; 95 per cent of all casualties in the last war were body casualties; armoring the aircraft considerably increased the weight, thus reducing speed; an effective body armor could weigh as little as six pounds; it would materially reduce costs, could even be issued from stores if desired; etc, etc.

While initially Bill's negotiations were conducted in secrecy, he finally came to the conclusion that the only way to force the government's hand was through publicity. Stories, therefore, began to appear in the newspapers concerning the value of body armor in war.

TWO STRANGERS

One evening two strangers approached Bill in the hotel and asked him to come to their room as they had a business proposition which would interest him. They apparently knew who he was, for they called him Colonel Williams.

Bill was not too surprised, as of late stories had appeared that the army was interested in his body armor. (The army actually opposed it on the grounds that, as the modren soldier had to carry such a weight of equipment which was absolutely essential for combat, even one extra pound would be discouraged unless some other pound would be eliminated thereby or its value far outweighed its extra weight disadvantage, which the army was far from convinced body armor would provide.)

A lot of persons read the newspapers, and it didn't require too much figuring to find out roughly just how many millions of suits of body armor might be sold if the idea was officially approved—nor the profit.

PRODUCE BLU-PRINTS

Bill was not prepared, however, for the blue-prints which the two strangers spread out before him, indicating they knew to the last detail the secrets of his flexible armor.

"From now on we split this three ways, see?" they said after he had seen.

These were the Chicago gangsters who first developed the armor.

Adversity is sometimes hard upon a man; but for one man who can stand prosperity, there are a hundred that will stand adversity.

NEW EDITOR

LLOYD H. JENKINS

Lloyd H. Jenkins, who has joined Community Publications staff as editor, has been everything from university professor to stock broker, but his business career has mainly been with newspapers.

He is a native of Charlottetown, P.E.I. His father, the late R. H. Jenkins, was a former mayor of that city and for many years M.P. for the federal constituency of Queens; later general manager of Jenkins Groceterias, with head office in Calgary and branches in many parts of Alberta.

For two years, Lloyd was a member of the English faculty of McGill University while taking his Master of Arts degree. In 1930 he joined the staff of the Ottawa Citizen, where he remained until he joined the R.C.A.F. After organizing public relations in Eastern Air Command, he was sent overseas to take charge of historical records.

Having travelled successively with an orchestra, a baseball team, a dramatic stock company, and even a circus for a time across North America, Mr. Jenkins is well-acquainted with this side of the water. During his sojourn with the R.C.A.F., as part of his work he travelled extensively in the United Kingdom and on the continent, and during 1948 extended his knowledge while a high executive with the International Refugee Organization.

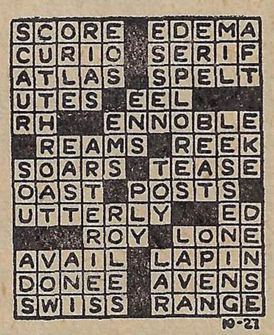

He has worked on a forestry survey, driven sight-seeing cars in the national parks, been a script writer and liaison officer between production and distribution for the National Film Board, but his first and real love was newspaper work. More recently he was chief feature writer for The Edmonton Bulletin.

Letter to the Editor

Beiseker, Alta.

Dear Sir—I have just read your article in regard to the Hutterites of this district and find that you are making some rather large statements. As neighbor of these people I have lived beside them as long as they have been in this country. I do not know if this is the first or last article of this type that you are printing, as I am not a steady subscriber to your paper and the last issue was sent to me as a sample.

I have found the Hutterites very good people and as a close neighbor I know for a fact that they will help me before any others will even attempt to.

Yes, they get the family allowance and why shouldn't they as they also are counted as citizens of our great country and as to paying income tax you never hear of them complaining of paying such large sums as they have to under their way of living.

As far as carrying fire arms in the war, I think that if we would read the statements made to these people before they entered Canada, I think that you would find that they had this clause in their immigration forms.

The Hutterites are good living people and are not to be made fun of. I am sure that if the police in Canada didn't have any more trouble with the other people of Canada, our police force could be cut down 75 per cent.

Trusting that you will be good enough to print this letter in the next issue of the paper.

A Neighbor.

Peonies Move Best In September

September is the best month to divide and transplant peonies, but they should not be moved more often than once in five years, unless there is special reason for doing so. Choose a fine day for digging up the plants and take care not to damage the roots, which in a large plant may go down a foot or more. The leaves of the plant should be cut off before starting to dig and the loose earth removed from the roots which should be exposed to the air for a few hours. Wash off all the soil with water.

Examine the root carefully to see where it can be divided with as little damage to the tuber as possible. A very large clump can be divided by forcing a digging fork down into the centre, but smaller ones can be forced apart by hand. Each division must consist of a tuber with two or three eyes, but divisions with six or seven eyes are better for the average gardener.

Before planting, the ground should be well dug and if possible some well rotted manure added and well mixed in. The root should be placed so that there is about two inches of soil above the crown. Too deep planting is frequently the cause of peonies not blooming. A mulch should be put on the first year after the ground has frozen, but when the plants are well established no mulch is necessary. The leaves should be cut back each fall and burned in order to destroy any disease germs which may be present.

NORAL NEWS

Farmers are finished harvesting and are waiting for the threshing machines to start rolling.

A moving picture and dance will be held on September 23 at Noral hall.

Mike Krampic was to Noral on business on September 12.

Mr. Geo. Cherniwachan is staying at his brother-in-law's place while he is working on the railway.

Mr. Alex Halaska's tractor is out of commission with a broken drive shaft.

HYLO NEWS

HYLO.—Classes in the Hylo school reopened with a very large attendance. Especially in the junior room is the enrollment record-breaking, even though the class has been minimized to four grades only.

Miss Helen Sloboden, the new school teacher, was cordially welcomed into the set-up for the coming term and has taken the young folks under her friendly wing immediately.

Miss Sloboden finds that the equipment is rather scarce, "even worse than expected," to put it in her own words. Children just cannot be driven to learn if there is nothing to create interest with.

We are happy to see that the children, vanned from Venice, feel themselves quite at home in our school.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Grandish was visited by all of Stanley's relatives the week-end of Sept. 3 to 4.

It became a reunion when sister Helen, who has been travelling in all parts of Canada and lately residing in eastern provinces, brother Marshal, dad Grandish, brother Joe and wife Nelie and sonny Kenneth dropped in for a day's visit.

Marshal, who is a school teacher, and who intends to acquire his B.Ed. before very long, admired the new Hylo set-up. When it was suggested that in the next year or so there may be an opening for a principal, he replied: "Could consider that matter."

The Hylo Ladies' Society held its meeting at Mrs. Augustina Manca's home and members welcomed into their midst a guest, Miss Sloboden.

Business was rather lengthy, with many problems to settle.

It was decided to post tenders for a fencing job to be done on the sports grounds.

The ladies decided to organize a bazaar to be held solely for raising funds for the Misericordia Church at Hylo, which is badly in need of inetrior decorating.

Mrs. Elda Keehn was appointed to order a doll and a trunk. This will be outfitted with a complete bride's trouseau and will be raffled at the bazaar also for some funds.

The ladies are going to sew the garments which will make up the trouseau and all the Catholic ladies of the Hylo community who are truly interested in their church were asked to inquire if they could help. Remember! this is for all the Catholic ladies.

The funds will be kept separate from the Ladies' Society account.

The hostess served a very delicious lunch and nearly over-fed the ladies with dessert. The cream puffs were so delicious and so plentiful that cake was saved for another day.

The hamlet of Hylo was moved with fear when on September 9 the sudden storm fanned the ground fires west of the hamlet into flame.

A spade and bucket brigade turned out but the smoke was so dense that nothing could be done.

Everyone whispered a prayer of thanks when heavy drops of rain drenched the grass in the path of the fire.

September 11 the Misericordia Church was the scene of a quiet but touching service led by visiting Rev. Father Lozinski. Father Lozinski has recently come to Canada from the old Ukrain with his wife and two children to serve the Ukrainian Catholic people in the area surrounding Boyle.

Such an appealing speaker or marvellous singer has never yet visited Hylo.

Father Lozinski made inquiries into the aid that could be produced by the Ukrainian Catholics of Hylo toward the erection of a parish rectory in the town of Boyle.

Over night the summer fled and autumn brought the feel of winter in its winds.

A Dagwood and Blondie film was shown at the school on Saturday night, with a meeting after the show to discuss the building of a new hall. As a result of the meeting work has already been started on a new building which is to be eight feet longer than the old hall. Glade Mellott is in charge of the work.

The ladies of Grassland have been busy during the past week painting the interior of the Nurses' home. Miss Marguerite Ries arrived on Saturday to take over her new duties as district nurse. Miss Ries has been working with the health unit at Stettler.

Mr. Andrew Sakulich had a narrow escape from serious injury when a front wheel came off his tractor while he was travelling at a considerable speed on the road. He says it is a good thing the tractor couldn't do more than 30.

City Legion Asks For Housing Authority Here

Predicting spiralling home rentals, widespread eviction orders and action-backed protests would result from the removal of rent controls next March 31, W. J. Williams, executive secretary of Montgomery Branch Canadian Legion said, "when rent controls are lifted there is going to be a splash right away."

Mr. Williams, just returned from housing conferences at Ottawa in which he represented the provincial command on invitation as well as the veterans, spoke to more than 200 members at a Legion general meeting in Memorial Hall.

He warned veterans they could expect little consideration from landlords once the federal government had scrapped rent controls. "Your rents will be increased from 50 to 100 per cent."

He said he already knew of one example in which the landlord advised a tenant that he intended boosting a $30 rental to $80.

He said this applied to a two-room basement suite and served as an example of the way landlords were thinking.

The Legion would not stand idly by and see its members thrown out on the streets, he said.

"We do not want to cross swords with the law, but if the veterans are put out we'll put them right back in," he said, amid wild cheering.

Allan McDonald, vice-president of the Legion, pointed out that the federal government still had emergency power to continue rent control but that the housing situation had eased in other centres and it was the federal governments desire to turn control over to the provincial governments.

He said he would like to see the Alberta government show "enough guts" to take over the responsibility "without sitting on the sidelines and criticizing."

Joe Ferguson advocated formation of a direct-action committee to be prepared for eventualities.

The meeting advocated that the city establish a housing authority to see that low-salaried people receive housing at reasonable rentals.

With a low-cost housing project under way, at least one-third of the dwellings should be earmarked for veterans until all veterans are housed, declared Mr. Williams.

Bishop Of Saskatoon In McMurray

McMURRAY. — His Excellency, Bishop Pocock of Saskatoon, paid a short visit to McMurray last week. The prime reason for his visit was to further the Family Rosary Crusade, that is to stress family evening prayer. At a meeting held at McMurray Community hall, Bishop Pocock was introduced by Father Turcotte, who spoke briefly on the purpose of the visit. C. A. Palmer thanked him for his lecture on behalf of the Holy Name Society.

The next day the Bishop was the guest of Sister Superior at St. Gabriel's hospital, at a banquet.

1949 Canada Savings Bonds

A Fourth Series of Canada Savings Bonds will go on sale across Canada in October. This was announced at Ottawa by the Hon. Douglas Abbott, Minister of Finance, who, at the same time, gave notice that Canada Savings Bonds, Series Three, will be withdrawn from sale on August 31. The Minister said that the decision to issue a Fourth Series of Canada Savings Bonds was prompted by the enthusiastic response that had attended the previous three offerings.

Since 1946, when the First Series of these bonds was issued, Canadians have made more than three million purchases of Canada Savings Bonds, to a total value of more than $1 billion. Last year purchases on the Payroll Savings Plan by employees of thousands of Canadian companies, reached a new high of $118 million. More than 43 per cent off all employees to whom the payroll plan was made available bought bonds.

Although terms of the new issue have not yet been announced, it is expected that the Fourth Series will retain the features which proved so popular in the first three. As in the past, the bonds will be available through banks and investment dealers as well as on the Payroll Savings Plan.

Preparations for the Fourth Series are well advanced. The six regional directors responsible for the excellent payroll results in Series Three have been reappointed. They are: British Columbia, L. F. Worsley, Vancouver; Prairie Provinces, H. A. Benham, Winnipeg; Ontario, J. H. Ratcliffe, Toronto; Quebec, G. Gingras and E. S. Morse, Montreal; Maritimes, C. T. Watt, Saint John, N.B.

FILA Loans Buy 10,000 Tractors

Nearly twice as much was borrowed by Canadian farmers under provisions of the Farm Improvements Loans Act in the first six months of 1949 as in the similar period of 1948. The semi-annual report of the operations under the Act show total loans to June 30, of $18 million—an increase of 45 per cent.

The greatest part of the borrowing was to finance the purchase of farm machinery and equipment. Over 10,000 tractors were purchased, for which $11 million was borrowed and truck and other agricultural implement purchases were financed through the Act to the extent of $5 million.

Farm buildings and repairs accounted for $960,000 of the money borrowed; $309,713 was used for brushing and clearing over 36,000 acres in new agricultural areas; and $72,000 for the installation of farm electric systems.

For the past four years farmers in the west have used the facilities of the Farm Improvement Loans Act to a much greater extent than farmers in the east. But the report indicates an interesting swing-over in this respect. Loans in the first six months of 1949 in Ontario increased 68 per cent; in Quebec, 132 per cent; and in Maritime Provinces, 99 per cent; while those in the Prairie Provinces only increased by 31 per cent.

Loans are made to farmers through chartered banks in Canada and are guaranteed in part by the government. The Act aims at assisting the average farmer and provides credit under terms and conditions which are conveniint and suitable to his needs and to th part of the country in which he lives.

Paris Murder Case Strangest Recorded

By JAY LLOYD

The Paris case, from a legal view-point at any rate, is undoubtedly the strangest murder trial on record.

WHO WAS LYING?

Paris is the name of a person, not a place, and yet "place" became the whole point of issue in the series of trials. One would think that residents of two Maritime municipalities were locked in battle of the provinces, although ordinarily Truro, Nova Scotia, and Saint John, New Brunswick, are not rivals.

One might think the honor of the community was at stake, and yet one cannot read the evidence without being convinced that those giving testimony were sincere in believing they were telling the truth as they saw it: Truro contending that John Paris could not have committed the murder because he was in Truro when it occurred, and Saint John being equally convinced that he had been on the murder scene.

THE MURDER

On August 2, 1921, little Sadie McAuley went berry picking in Riverview Park at the north end of the city of St. John. Exactly one week later her ravaged body was found underneath a large stone near where she had disappeared.

From the outset the case aroused considerable interest in the Maritimes where any murder would attract attention because of its comparative rarity. But also at the outset there was little to indicate that the case before final disposition was to become unique in jurisprudence. That is, if the case WAS finally disposed of. In the 16 years since John Paris was dismissed from the court a free man, however, the Crown has given no indication otherwise.

No, John Paris was not found not guilty. Technically, perhaps during all these years he has not been a free man. The truth was the Crown just gave up trying to convict him.

ONCE FOUND GUILTY

Not that the Crown did not try. In fact, the New Brunswick attornty general's department tried five times to fix responsibility for Sadie McAley's death on John Paris, actually being successful once!

THE SOLUTION TO ALL YOUR PROBLEMS IS INSURANCE

Many things can happen in a few years. The events of the last few years are enough to make you realise the truth of this fact. But it is strange that, while accepting this truism as applied to impersonal matters, the average individual is inclined to ignore it in so far as his or her personal affairs are concerned.

If you are thoughtful and prudent, however, you will not regard your future in a haphazard fashion and will consider the important matter of life insurance. Call in any time and talk over the matter of your insurance with

By DON DONNELLY

FREEDOM.—Some fellows can get away with anything. There's one in our neighborhood that does. Morals don't mean a thing to him.

He's unmarried and lives openly with a woman and doesn't care what the neighbors say or think. He has no regard for truth or law. The duties of the so-called good citizen are just so much bunk as far as he's concerned. He doesn't vote at either the preliminaries or the general election. He never thinks of paying a bill. We have seen him take a $2 taxi ride without giving the driver so much as a pleasant look. The driver only stared at him and muttered something silly.

He won't work a lick; he can't play cards, or dance, or fool around with musical instruments or the radio. So far as known, he has no intellectual or cultural interests at all.

He neglects his appearance terribly. He's so indolent, he'd let the house burn down before he'd turn in an alarm. The telephone could ring itself to pieces, and he wouldn't bother to answer it.

Even on such a controversial subject as the liquor question nobody knows exactly where he stands, because one minute he's dry, and the next minute he's wet.

But we'll say this for him in spite of all his faults, he comes of a darn good family. He's our NEIGHBOR'S BABY.

GREAT SCOT

JAMES KILPATRICK

One of the most famous Scottish lawsuits involving livestock concerned a horse. It was fitting that the animal's name should be "Baron of Buchlyvie," for the case went to the House of Lords—Britain's supreme civil tribunal.

One of the parties to the disputed ownership was James Kilpatrick; his address, the farm of Craigie Mains, Ayrshire, and his horses, Clydesdales. The Clydesdale breed is the native Scottish draught horse, and for nearly 60 years the same of James Kilpatrick has dominated the show ring where Clydesdales are exhibited. At the Scottish Stallion Show, held in the spring of each year, Mr. Kilpatrick has won the Cawder Cup, no fewer than 15 times. As the Cp is won outright when an owner has scored four successes, that means that he has three cups in his possession and is well on the way to keeping a fourth.

His first win of this particular trophy—he has won all the others worth winning, some of them outright was in 1893 and as recently as last year he won once again.

This "Great Scot" succeeded his uncle at the farm of Craigie Mains, and proceeded to build up with the years a reputation as an authority and breeder of Clydesdales which has never been equalled. His greatest rival was the late Mr. William Dunlop, Dunure Mains Farm, Ayrshire, who was also his partner in the ownership of "Baron of Buchlyvie," bought about 1904 for £200 ($800). The law suit was brought because it was alleged that Mr. Kilpatrick had sold his share. This he denied, and his statement was upheld in the House of Lords. At the close of the case the horse was put up for sale by auction in 1911. It brought the world record sum for a draught horse of £9,500 ($38,000) equal to £25,000 ($100,000) today—and was bought by Mr. Dunlop.

Mr. Kilpatrick is known where ever draught horses are bred, including America and Australia, but that is not his only string; he has also recured the supreme championship for British Friesian cattle at the last two Royal Highland shows in Scotland.

So popular has Mr. Kilpatrick been that in 1946 farmers from all parts of Scotland entertained him to lunch in Glasgow and presented him with a testimonial. They had also intended to give him a gift of money, but he asked that instead a Cup should be bought and competed for annually at the Royal Highland Show. This has been done, and the James Kilpatrick Cup now goes with the President's Medal for the best stallion in the show.

U.K.-Danish Bacon

Denmark and the United Kingdom have recently concluded a bacon agreement for 1950. Numbers of pigs in Denmark are increasing according to recent surveys. The total number of pigs on July 16, 1949, was 2.7 million, an increase of 341 thousand during the previous ten weeks.

It is expected that the numbers will continue to rise as the new agreement with the United Kingdom gives Danish farmers assurance of a continuing bacon market at good prices.

Fortune in Old House

CHICAGO. — After her father's death, Mrs. Lucille Schader went to Duquoin to "tidy" up the house before renting it. She found a jar containing "buttons" and threw it out without examination. Neighbors noticed the bottle and a bank identified the "buttons" as Mexican gold coins, worth about $500. When the new tenants started to redecorate the dining room, they found a box in a hole beneath the wallpaper. The box contained jewels, stocks and bonds, belonging to Mrs. Schrader's grandparents, which are estimated to be worth $40,000.

Hong Kong — This British colony is not the only foreign area nervous about approach of Chinese Communists. Forty miles away is Portugal's tiny possession on Chinese soil, Macao. Current assumption is that plans are being prepared for mutual defence. Malcolm Macdonald, British High Commissioner for southeast Asia, has pledged defence of the British colony against any assault.

Berlin—The city is looking more prosperous now that in any period since the war. Shops are full of goods scarce for years and cafes and cabarets are doing well. For the average Berliner, however, money is scarce and most are buying little more than bare necessities.

Madrid—Ending a break with Spain dating back to 1492, King Abdullah of Hashemite Jordan paid a ten-day visit. No independent Arab potentate has put foot on Spanish soil since Morrish King Boabdil el Chico surrendered the keys to Granada to King Ferdinand the year Columbus discovered America.

Berlin — German industrialists coming from the Soviet zone to West Germany accuse Russia of exploiting forests so fast that no commercial timber will be left in two years.

Bangkok—Thailand is the latest country to feel pressure of Communism. Premier Luang Phibun Songram said inroads were becoming so alarming he was considering getting modern weapons from abroad to combat it.
